itta's story

but six months ago I sorted out a lot of old documents — credit card receipts, bank mements, electricity bills, letters, and so on. I put them all in a bag and my husband said he build take it to the recycling centre the next time he was in that part of town. However, he werdid, so in the end I just put the bag out with the rubbish bin.

the weeks later, when I checked my bank account balance, there was no money left in the want. I went to see the bank manager and he told me that all the money had been withdrawn cash machines in Australia. I said that I'd never been to Australia, but he showed me the imputer records.

things got worse. The next day my credit card statement arrived. There were several pensive things on it that I hadn't bought. I phoned the credit card company and they said that things had been bought on the Internet from Australia. They asked me if I had lost my adit card at any time, but I told them that I hadn't. I said I had no idea how anyone had got details.

nyway, I told my neighbour about it, and he said that he'd seen someone looking in the bish bins a few weeks earlier. Then, of course, I realized. The person had taken the bag with my old documents in it.

their experts on ID theft. She said that it was a very common crime and that people made it be say for the thieves. She told me that you should always destroy any documents with ancial information on — and personal information, too. She said that thieves used personal talls, such as your date of birth, your mother's maiden name, children's names and birthdays work out Personal Identification Numbers (PINs) and passwords.

ell, I'm certainly more careful now. You really have to protect your identity.
